LONG-AWAITED PAVING was completed on North Crockett Street this week as this asphalt-laying machine prepares to start. The street is one of many in the city set for paving as preparations are completed and the dry, warm weather holds out.

Education Committee Reports To Governor

The House Education Committee has made its final recommendations to Governor Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Price Daniel Jr., according to Rep. Dan Kubiak, chairman of the committee.

The committee in its final recommendation stated "emphatically" that the local school districts must be relieved of further increases in costs of education and that those costs be transferred to the state , Kubiak stated.

"Schools have only the antiquated and regressive property tax to finance the local share of school costs," he continued, "and it was feeling of the committee that the state can better equalize the expenditures for education on a broad based tax. Unless the Legislature acts on this matter before Sept. 1, 1974, our committee finds that local districts will have tax increases on their property from 10 to 50 percent.

Kubiak said the committee passed a resolution calling on the governor to call a special session on or before Sept. 1, 1974, to solve the public school finance problem and include benefits to those teachers who have retired.

"With a measure as complicated and complex as public school finance, it is our feeling that this must be handled in a special session where there is no other business," Kubiak said. "Unless something is done in the immediate future, many of the 1147 school districts in the state will be facing immediate financial disasters."

Briefly the recommendations are:

1. Teacher-pupil ratio be one teacher to 15 students in kindergarten, one teacher to 20 students in grades one through three, one teacher to 23 students in grades four through six and one teacher to 24 students in grades seven through 12;

2. Allocation of state funds on average daily membership rather than average daily attendance;

3. Increase transportation allocations by 50 percent;

4. Increase operation and maintenance costs per pupil from the low $30 to $85;

5. Provide funds for accountability, accreditation and follow-up in the evaluation of education in Texas;

6. Reduce the number of school days required from 180 to 171 days so that schools will begin after Labor Day, and reduce in-service training for teachers from ten to six days;

7. Add to state program funds for central staff members including nurses, counselors, librarians, secretaries and other central members, and require each school district to conduct school each year rather than once every two years as six districts are doing under the present system.

"If this program passes, local districts could reduce ad valorem taxes or could divert current funds for buildings, air conditioning or anything the local school board desires," Kubiak added. "We are currently ranked 38th in education in the 50 states, but passage of this proposal of the committee would rank us in the top ten.

"Our House Education Committee worked all summer on this measure, and hopefuly it will be solved when and if the Governor calis a special session of the Legislature to correct this problem that affects some two and one-half million youngsters in Texas. We spend $3.20 per day per child for education in Texas today."

Police Department OK, Says Council Committee

A committee from the city council appointed to investigate allegations against the Cameron Police Department reported Tuesday evening that it found insufficient evidence to warrant accusations of malpractice in the department.

The committee included Councilmen Lawrence Zotz, Starrett Hickman, and city attorney Ed Magre, and was appointed to investigate allegations put forth in a statement by former policeman Bob Pilkey.

The committee recommended that police salaries be raised to compare with other areas to attract and hold better men. Also recommended was a more thorough check on prospective applicants.

In other business, the council:

—Heard Ernest Moore ask for solution to a water drainage problem on East 18th Street;

-- Approved renovation of East First St. to the railroad tracks from Fannin St, and lowering the street for drainage;

-- Awarded bids for 500 feet of water hose for the fire department to W. A. Neal Co., and bids for two air packs for the department, also to W. A. Neal;

-- Renewed the contract with Milam County for rural fire protection for a year at $800.

-- Heard James Camp give a resume of the city's insurance coverage and probable premiums for next year, including coverage for workmen's compensation, city equipment, buildings, bonds, etc.;

-- Heard A. W. McCullin report on the city's planning commission's recommendations for mobile homes in the city. It was decided that amendments could be made on the city's present mobile home ordinance instead of adopting a new code;

-- Heard Mayor Blake report on funds for park improvement -- the Mayor said state park officials would meet with him this week to look over Wilson-Ledbetter Park and discuss what could be done;

-- Authorized the Mayor and city secretary to take bids on a new calculator for city office.

Discussing the problem of trash pickup, Mayor Blake and Works Supt. James Hale emphasized that leaves and trash should be bagged or put in other containers for pickup. They reminded citizens that limbs should be cut into four-foot lengths or they will not be picked up.

Hale will try to get someone to be on call to pick up dead animals off the streets, especially on weekends between garbage pickups.

Trustees Continue Search For New Superintendent

The Cameron school board acting as a committee of the whole met in called session Friday and authorized Supt. D. R. Dodson to contact various colleges and universities for recommendations for a new superintendent.

The committee has set a target date of January for hiring a new superintendent to replace Supt. Dodson, whose contract expires August 31, 1974. Dodson chose not to serve another term as superintendent.

TIMES, TEMPERATURE

It took a while to establish the connection, but there it was.

A release came across the news desk the other day about a new man going to Concordia College, Austin, from Concordia College, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Concordia College in Austin used to be headed by Dr. George Beto, who later headed the Texas Prison System during its rise from the melancholy ashes of its former self.

Concordia Colleges are inevitably Lutheran schools wherever they are located in this country. The one in Fort Wayne, an industrial city of about 150,000, is, or was, a junior college and military school, as I remember.

I never attended school there though I was on the campus, but a great uncle, a Lutheran minister went into Fort Wayne maybe a hundred years ago out of Sheboygan County, Wisc., and started what is now Concordia of Fort Wayne.

Dr. Beto is also a Lutheran minister and went to college at Valparaiso, Ind.

Anyway, the school Dr. Beto used to head got a man from a school a great uncle of mine started.

I saw Dr. Beto among 37 distinguished Texans during a recent session of the Constitution Revision Commission, trying to outline a viable constitutional proposal for the Texas Legislature to work with next year.

Which goes to show, 100 years apart, real men serve and pioneer where they are needed.

Lunch Prices Going Up At Buckholts School

The Buckholts school board at its September meeting elected to set lunch prices at 50 cents for students and 60 cents for adults beginning October 1. Prices were 40 cents and 50 cents.

"Quality and service will be improved to encourage more participation," said Supt. Leon Brady. "It is also noted that some patrons qualified for free lunches have not applied and may do so at any time."

In other action, the bus drivers policy was revised as required by law. Also adopted was a "leave of absence" policy for employees of the system.

The Buckholts system has been invited to participate in the Right to Read Program as one of the two pilot schools in Region VI.

The school has set its annual Homecoming supper on Friday, October 5 from 4 to 7 p.m. A football game with Abbott will start at 8 p.m.

ABE Classes Ready To Start Organizing

Organizational meetings for the 1973-74 Adult Basic Education (ABE) program will begin next week. Classes will include those adults who are seeking to attain their General Education Development (GED) certification.

The meetings were outlined by County School Supt. Max McClaren, whose office operates and supervises the program.

The meeting for Cameron students will get underway Monday at Cameron Junior High School at 7 p.m. Mrs. Patsy Matula will be in charge. Classes will also be held at the St.Anthony School in Cameron with Mrs.Elva Vargas as instructor. Bi-lingual lessions will be offered in that class.

The Rockdale meeting will be held Tuesday, September 25 at the Rockdale Junior High School at 7 p.m. with Mrs. Alma Doss as instructor.

At Hearne, classes begin Tuesday, September 25 at the North Side Junior High School with Mrs. Barry J. Whiteside teaching.

Classes at Calvert will start October 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the Calvert Junior High School with Mrs. Thelma Johnson as teacher.

Supt. McClaren said plans are being developed to begin classes at Thorndale, Milano, Gause, Caldwell, Snook and other areas within the next two weeks.

Max Morgan and Don Mitchell will serve as ABE co-directors.

Supplies, notebooks, workbooks, paper and all other material will be supplied to students at no charge. There is no tuition charge for the classes. Any adult 17 years fo age orover may attend McClaren emphasized.

Anyone needing more information about the classes is asked to call Supt. McClaren at 697-3001.

During the 1972-73 school year, 37 adults received their GED certification, McClaren noted. There were some 280 students enrolled in the adult education classes last year.

Certification For Food Stamps Now In Progress

Certification of persons wishing to participate in the statewide food stamp program in Milam County is now in progress, according to Edwin J. Tyroch, food stamp supervisor at Temple.

The food stamp program will replace the commodity program starting November 1.

"If you're unemployed, don't make much money or receive public assistance you may be eligible for food stamps," Tyroch explained. "With food stamps, you spend the same amount you presently do for groceries but receive more and better food for your money."

Food stamps increase the purchasing power of low-income households by 10 to 30 percent or even more. And food stamps are a good means for using America's agricultural abundance while helping those who can't afford to eat better, he added.

Certification is done at the food stamp office at 603 West 6th St., Cameron, or the local welfare office.

The State Department of Public Welfare administers the program which is financed by the State of Texas and the United States Department of Agriculture.

Before House Is Built...

We understand that not only Cameron, but Milano and Rockdale will be seeking new superintendents next year.

The Cameron board has already authorized contacts with universities and colleges for a replacement for Supt. D. R. Dodson, who is retiring next summer.

It is possible that the other two independent districts might be contacted at this time to see what future, not only in terms of consolidation but in actual education needs, the three districts face in the career futures of their three new administrators?

There is the growing need for technology in all high schools, not just Milano, Cameron or Rockdale. Perhaps the first central Milam school effort would be in the direction of support from these districts, which are home for so many Alcoa employees and offspring.

Is there not a cross over of interest in the county in future school administrators? After all, the independent districts dominate county systems. They have become several continguous powers independent of any county authority. But are not their interests regional in this respect?

Are not school costs of the future going to be borne by the state? And are not those costs, particularly construction, going to be greater in the career spans of new administrators?

Would not these administrators and their boards have to be consulted in the inevitability of broader area education needs?

It is inevitable they would. And the time to plow new ground or connect new circuitry is early spring or before the whole house is built.

Never Had It So Tall...

Cameron's football team is not only strong, but it is tall. Both characteristics contribute to two consecutive wins.

Two games running a quarterback has tried to loft a ball over 6-8 Ronnie Bennett, who either took it in for a touchdown or returned it for good yardage.

Another 6-5 or 6-6 end in Harry Brooks has the reach that forces tall passes or interceptions.

This unique dimension added to a powerful and quick defensive line forces the opposition to throw long or go for quick openers.

And if this height loses for some reason its effectiveness on the Yoe gridiron, look out for the basketball season.

Cameron's never had it so tall.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

BROCK: 'GOOD NEWS FOR THE TAXPAYER'

Senator Bill Brock (Tenn.) ". . . The President of the United States announced last week that the final budget figures for the fiscal 1973 showed that total Federal outlays were held to $246.6 billion.

"I well recall the pessimism which greeted his announcement last year of his resolve to keep the final figure under $250 billion. From all sides commentators said it was an impossible goal, and wondered why the President would be so unrealistic.

"His critics proved wrong, and the President proved right. . .

"There is not a man in this Chamber, including the Senator from Tennessee, who did not disagree with the President on some aspect of his fiscal restraint program. Each time he announced a new move in that regard, there were anguished cries from one-quarter or another that this cut or veto or impoundment would wreck the country.

"It is now clear that none of them did, and in fact, the net result of his managerial ability represents one of the greatest victories for the country in recent years.

"The Congress now has the opportunity to join the President in the battle for fiscal sanity. . .

"Just one day before the President's announcement, the Subcommittee on Budgeting Management and Expenditures of the Government Operations Committee reported out a bill S.1541, passage of which will, for the first time in the modern era, give the Congress the tools to make real reforms in spending policies. . .

"All of this is tremendously good news for the American taxpayer. . .

"So you see, it gets right down to us, and just how willing we are to say 'no' to programs we cannot afford. . ."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

No one ever won a popularity contest by insisting that a family, a business or a government keep spending compatible with income. Responsibility for continued inflation now rests squarely with the Unions at the bargaining tables.

Investigation Ordered In Vending Machine Industry

By Bill Boykin

New legislative sub-committee investigations of the amusement and vending machine industry have been ordered amid sensational (and disputed) allegations resulting from a 1968 probe.

Speaker Price Daniel Jr. named Rep. Arthur (Buddy) Temple of Diboll to head a House Consumer Affairs sub-panel inquiry into juke box operations and needed legislation in the field.

The sub-committee was instructed to work jointly with a Senate group headed by Sen. Ron Clower of Garland. Clower said his subcommittee will look into allegations the industry is linked to organized crime and that the regulatory state Amusement Machine Commission is dominated by big operators who do not protect customers.

Daniel said the air should be cleared of speculation, controversy and innuendo which have surrounded operation of the industry for years.

Meanwhile, Daniel unveiled some of the previously-secret records of a 1968 House investigation. Most controversial was a tape recording of testimony by Pete Martinez of Austin that he gave money to a state representative, a state senator (who is now dead) and a judge , on behalf of Raymond B. Williams of Dallas, a major amusement machine owner who previously served on the regulatory commission.

Williams has denied Martinez's testimony. Department of Public Safety Director Wilson E. Speir said Martinez, now serving a probated sentence for burgalry, failed to satisfy a lie detector test that he was telling the truth and that he refused to repeat his charges to a district attorney or grand jury.

AID FOR RUNAWAYS

An experimental hot line for runaway youths to send word to their families is being installed through leadership of Gov. Dolph Briscoe and with cooperation of the telephone company and its employees.

Briscoeannounced the facility, which he termed "Operation Peace-of-Mind," will be manned by volunteers for 30 days. The initial Houston office will have two statewide inbound Wide Area Telephone Service (WATS) lines, one national WATS line and three local lines in the city.

The Governor said the network will transmit messages from the runaways to their parents and friends and is not intended to "inform" on them. Volunteers will also tell the youthful wanderers where they can receive assistance anywhere in the state.

Number of the state WATS line is 1-800-392-3352. The national WATS number is 1-800-231-6946.

SALES TAX BONDS

Businessmen delinquent in payment of sales taxes they collect from customers must post bonds ranging from $100 to$50,000 after January 1.

Failure to put up the required bond (based on volume of business) and pay delinquent taxes may result in court action to close a business.

FredRuss, director of the State Comptroller's Tax Division, estimated $35 million in state and $7 million in local sales taxes are delinquent for the period which began in 1961. Much of this total is due to business failure.

Russ predicted $3 million to$4 million will be produced by the new bonding law from businessmen who are now deliquent.

Under the new law, a bond will be required of all new businesses for a two-year period. If there are no deliquencies, the requirement will be dropped.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear Editar:

People are always talking about spreads, the spread of Communism, the spread of inflation, the spread of radiation, middle-age spread, but nobody ever talks about the spread of capitalism.

What got me to thinking about this was a statement in the paper the other day by Secretary of the Treasury Schultz, who said he'd have to admit that "the United States got burned in the Russian wheat deal."

As you will recall, Russian buyers with their coats and ties on eased into this country, bought up over a billion dollars worth of wheat at $1.85 a bushel with money over half of which they borrowed from Washington, and immediately thereafter the price of wheat soared to over $5 a bushel.

It is now reported that the Russians, discovering they could almost triple their money, took part of the wheat home but sold some to Italy and other grain-short countries, at a very satisfactory profit.

This is what I'm talking about, the spread of capitalism. Somebody has let the cat out of the bag. You let Russia get a taste of profit-taking and the first thing you know China will want in on it, then the other Communist countries, maybe even Hanoi.

I don't know that there's anything that can be done about this, or should, but it might not be a bad idea for Washington to get on its toes, brush up a little on its knowledge of human nature.

There's something about a good profit that the human animal has never been able to resist, and anybody who doesn't know that human nature exists in all countries, communist or non-communist, aligned or un-aligned, is likely to come out on the short end of the stick, not to mention facing a lot of American wheat farmers who got taken. Keep a sharp look-out for wheeler-dealers in Communist clothes.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

The Family Lawyer

Over and over again, Widow Green's housekeeper urged her to "remember me in your will." Sure enough, when the widow died, the bulk of her estate was left to the housekeeper.

In short order, disgruntled relatives took the matter to court.

"This is a clear case of undue influence," they charged. "This woman simply pestered the old lady into writing her will that way."

However, the court found the widow's will valid. The court said that mere pestering, while it might be considered uncouth, could not be considered undue influence in the legal sense.

All sorts of pressures may affect the provisions of a person's will without being unlawful. In another case, the pressure was romantic. When a businessman died leaving everything to his secretary, his children complained in court that she had used feminine wiles to overcome his resistance.

But again, the court upheld the will.

"It is undeniably true," said the judge, "that the female sex does have the power in many instances to exercise a dominating influence over the male sex. However, there is a difference between due and undue influence. Undue influence must be such that the party had no free will but stood (in bondage) because of such influence."

Of course it may be difficult to tell, after the person has died, just how powerful the pressures were. Therefore, the law looks for certain telltale circumstances.

For example, undue influence was found plausible by one court because the person was in a weakened mental condition when he signed the will.

And another court decided that the owner of a rest home had exerted undue influence on a dying patient, largely because the terms of the will seemed "unnatural."

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

Area Swine Meeting Set

By Bill McCutchen

Milam County swine producers will have an opportunity to catch up on many segments of the industry Tuesday, September 25th in Brenham at the Blinn College Student Center.

The program will begin at 9:30 a.m. and end at about 3 p.m.

Items to be discussed include: the grain and protein outlook; swine waste management regulations; herd health; production efficiency and swine marketing programs.

A group from Milam County will meet at the Post Office in Cameron at 8:00 a.m. on the 25th to pool transportation.

Beef Situation Discussed

I participated in a beef marketing meeting last week at Texas A&M. Dr. Ed Svacek, Dr. William Vastine and Ernest Davis presented the training.

Svacek pointed out the marketing margins and costs. He said that a typical 1,000 pount steer of choice grade and yield grade 3 would yield a 600 pound carcass, which in turn will yield about 1/4 steaks, 1/4 roasts, 1/4 miscellaneous cuts and 1/4 waste and shrinkage.

In other words about 444 pounds of retail cuts from this 1000 pound steer. This would mean that if the finished steer price was 50¢ per pound live weight that the retail cuts would have to average about $1.13 per pound to break even without considering processing, hauling, handling and other marketing functions.

Svacek also pointed out that the beef industry could not respond quickly to consumer demands for more beef. He pointed out that the gestation period required about one year; another 1/2 year of the calf's life is spent on the farm; 1/2 year is usually in a stocker operation; and another 1/2 year is in the feedlot totaling 2 1/2 years from conception until you have a finished product.

When asked about future beef prices, Uvacek said that he expected some retailers to try to recover some losses initially after the freeze was lifted resulting in some initial increases in beef prices but he did not expect price increases to last long because of a 30% decrease in slaughter in recent months that will have to move to market soon and seasonally increased marketings in September.

When asked about the long range outlook he said we could expect a decline in beef prices to producers in late 1974 or 1975. He said herd numbers had been increasing for several years and in recent years by 6% per year when 2% per year was all that we needed to match population increases. He said that he expected these numbers to have a depressing effect on the market in late 1974 or 1975.

He said that increased foreign demand for this beef might offset this prediction however, as foreign countries, particularly Japan, have been buying more and more American beef.

Uvacek cited another factor that may offset the beef producers rather quickly. He said that government actions and consumer resistance were expected to hold a lid on retail beef. He said that with $4.50 grain sorghum and high protein this was putting a squeeze on feedlots, Uvacek said he would not be surprised to see pressure downward in the marketing chair resulting in lower prices to the farmer for stocker and feeder calves.

This action he said would not result in lower prices to consumers, just less dollars to the farmer.

State Hay Show Set

"One of the best hay crops in many a year" is the comment among farmers and ranchers across the state. Both yields and quality of the crop have been good -- but how good?

"To find out, enter your hay samples in this year's state hay show," invites Dr. Neal Pratt, agronomist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The annual show will be held on Sept. 27 at a site north of Houston about three miles north of the intersection of Farm Road 1960 and Hardy Road.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. and judging of hay samples will start at 10 a.m. Show judges are Al Novosad, Extension pasture specialist, and Pratt.

Show chairman is John Selensky, Occidential Chemical Co., Houston.

There of this year's show is "There's Money in Hay."

USDA Cites Change In Food Distribution

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced changes in food distribution program regulations which permit the use of Federally donated foods in nutrition programs for the elderly, funded under Title VII of the Older Americans Act.

The recently announced rule changes will permit nutrition programs for the elderly to get the same foods which USDA donates to charitable institutions, but without regard to whether the elderly people served are needy.

The Nutrition Program for the Elderly is administered by the U. S. Department of Health. Education and Welfare (HEW) in cooperation with state agencies on aging. The Food Distribution Program is administered by USDA's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS).

Animal Ag Conference Set In Jan.

The Texas Animal Agriculture Conference, first of its kind to be offered for all segments of animal industries, will be staged at Texas A&M University Jan. 21-23.

This word comes from L. A. Maddox, beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and conference chairman.

Consolidated general sessions will be held, along with individual short course offerings in beef cattle, dairy production, horses, swine, pasture and forage.

All sessions will be held in the J. Earl Rudder Conference Center.

The consolidated approach is being used, Maddox explained, in order to hold the five vitally important conference segments of animal agriculture early in the year. Approximately 2,000 participants are expected to hear a keynoter and other general session speakers bring vital information concerning the total industry, he added.

Extension Service specialists serving with Maddox on the overall planning committee are A. M. Meekma, assisting with the dairy production phase; B. F. Yeates, chairing the horse section; Dr. W. B. Thomas, heading plans for the swine short course; Dr. Neal Pratt arrangements chairman for the forage and pasture section; and Dr. Dennis Herd, chairman for the beef cattle section.

Spray Pecans For Caterpillars

By Bill McCutchen

Walnut caterpillars have defoliated many pecan trees in Milam County in the past two weeks. Outbreaks should be controlled since the extensive foliage loss caused by the pests results in reduced pecan production not only this year but for the following 2 to 4 years.

With the light set of nuts this year, pecan producers tend to observe their trees less frequently and are reluctant to treat for pest problems.

Effective controls include carbaryl (Sevin), endosulfan (Thiodan), azinphosmethyl (Guthion), malathion or Toxaphen. Only Carbaryl or malathion can be used where cattle are grazing in a pecan grove.

The caterpillars overwinter in the soil as pupae and emerge in late April and May to deposit clusters of eggs on lower leaf surfaces. The clusters are about the size of a nickel and contain about 800 round, whitish eggs.

Larvae emerge from the egg clusters to pass through five stages and pupate in the soil. In the fifth stage, the larvae reach a length of about 2 inches and are clothed with long, delicate, white hairs.

It is during the month-long larval period that most damage id done. The larvae tend to feed in groups and shed their skin after moving down onto the trunk or larger limbs.

Only two generations occur in Texas, with the present second generation doing the most damage.

The wooly caterpillars do not enclose themselves in webs typical of tent caterpillars or fall webworms.

Additional information is contained in the "Texas Guide for Controlling Insects and Diseases of Commercial Fruits and Nuts" which is available from the county Extension office.

Peanut Field Day Set At Yoakum

The annual Peanut Field Day at the Texas A&M University Plant Disease Research Station at Yoakum set for Sept. 26 will highlight numerous areas of interest to peanut producers.

The station is located about two miles east of Yoakum on State Highway 111.

Tours of field plots will begin at 1 p.m. according to Dr. Thurman Boswell, associate professor with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, who heads up the research program at the station.

Fieldday visitors will have an opportunity to see variety tests and plots featuring the use of growth regulators, foliar disease control and nematode and insect control.

Screwworm Cases On Increase South 11 Counties

COLLEGE STATION

Screwworm cases are increasing rapidly in 11 South Texas counties, where a heavy infestation of the Gulf Coast tick, commonly known as the ear tick, also is reported.

Dr. M. E. (Cotton) Meadows, Jr., director of the Screwworm Eradication Program at Mission, said Friday that these 11 counties have recorded 569 screworm cases within the past two weeks, and more than 60 percent of the cases have resulted from ear tick wounds.

"Fifty-seven of the 58 Texas screwworm cases confirmed Aug. 30 came from these 11 counties, and 43 resulted from ear wounds. The hard-hit area is south of a line extending from Webb to Nueces counties.

Dr. H. Q. Sibley of the Texas Animal Health Commission, Austin, also emphasized that the ear tick problem is so widespread in the southern part of the state that it is now impossible for the screwworm program livestock inspectors to continue spraying infested herds.

An Even Dozen ... Sheep Feeding Declines ... Food and Fiber Pavilion Plans Nearing Completion.

An even dozen commodities are above pari•y for Texas agricultural producers, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service notes.

The commodities are wheat, corn, oats, potatoes, hogs, beef cattle, calves, sheep, turkeys, eggs and mohair.

The average wheat price in Texas is $4.24 compared with parity at $3.51 per bushel. Corn at $2.75 per bushel compares with parity of $2.36. Rice at $11 per hundredweight compares with $9.65 parity. Potatoes at $6.50 per hundredweight compares with $4.32 for parity.

All but one category of livestock is above parity, the single exception being lambs.

Hogs at $55.80 compares with parity at $37.10. Beef cattle averaged $56.30 per hundredweight; parity is $44.70. Calves at $68 per hundred average compares with parity at $54.20. Sheep at $19.40 per hundred compare with parity at $12.60. Lambs averaged $37.60, but this is $8.20 per hundred under parity.

Turkeys averaged 46 cents per pound with parity at 40.5 cents per pound. Eggs averaged 69.2 cents per dozen with parity at 64 cents. Mohair averaged $2.30 per pound with parity at $1.49 per pound.

Cotton prices to farmers averaged 34 cents per pound while parity was 66.05 cents per pound.

The all-farm products index of prices received by Texas farmers and ranchers is 20 per cent above the month of August and 61 per cent above a year ago. The livestock and livestock products index is 21 per cent above a month ago and 69 per cent higher than a year ago. The all-crops index is 18 per cent above a month ago and 50 per cent above a year ago.

And though farm prices go up, they also come down. During the period from August 15 to September 6, for example, prices had dropped 14 per cent.

Farm production costs also continue to rise. The index of prices paid by farmers is 19 per cent above a year ago.

DRYLOT sheep feeders with a capacity of 2,000 head or more had 117,000 sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter as of Sept. 1. This is seven per cent below the number on feed a month earlier and nine per cent below the number on feed a year ago.

Current intentions to market are: September 55,000; October 36,000; November 26,000. Placements during August totaled 54,000 head with a total of 10 feeders reporting 1,000 or more head on feed as of September 1.

PLANS for the Food and Fiber Pavilion of the Texas Department of Agriculture at the State Fair of Texas are nearly complete. Theme of the pavilion this year will be to show consumers how to get the most value for their food dollars.

This will be the fourth year that the Texas Department of Agriculturs has had charge of the food and fiber pavilion. About one million persons annually have visited the pavilion since then.

A number of programs are planned to show consumers how to get the most for their food money including special emphasis on cost per serving. Special programs are also planned to highlight the natural fibers--cotton, wool and mohair.

Also on display will be features highlighting the top-quality in foods produced by Texas agricultural producers.

A&M Sets Career Day

Canada Tightens Laws On Would-Be Immigrants

By Neil Harrison

OTTAWA

Reuter - Canada has tightened its immigration laws to cut off the flow of semi-legal immigrants entering by the side door.

The federal government has announced a tough new set of measures that are expected to change the whole pattern of settlement in the country.

Theoretically, Canada has always had stiff entry requirements favoring white collar and professionally skilled applicants but in recent years the reality has been different.

Until the recent change, it has been possible to arrive in Canada as a visitor then apply from inside the country to stay and become a 'landed immigrant' -- permanent settler.

Anyone applying this way had to meet the same criteria as those applying by the regular channels from outside and was ordered deported if they did not reach the required standard.

However, anyone served with such a deportation order had an absolute right to a two-stage appeal.

So many people, including thousands of "visitors" who came by special charters from third world countries, used this approach that the immigration appeal courts became hopelessly jammed.

The current backlog stands at over 17,000 cases in the final appeal stage along -- a workload that could take ten years to clear.

This meant that a deportation order had virtually become a permit to settle for several years, by which time it was usually possible to win landed status on the grounds that deportation would disrupt an established lifestyle.

Now, the new system has abolished that right of appeal except in very limited, exceptional circumstances.

The effect is to close tightly the much publicized "side door" for "come as a visitor but stay for ever to fight your case" applicants.

But the change has brought good news for the many thousands of people already in Canada illegally or semi-legally.

They have been given sixty days -- until September 30 -- to report themselves to the immigration authorities. Anyone who does will be able to apply to stay permanently under a special lenient procedure which will exclude only those who have committed serious criminal acts.

The measure amounts to an amnesty which could effect between 50,000 and 200,000 people -- the numbers variously estimated by the authorities to be in Canada underground.

From now on, only the traditional procedures will be open for intended immigrants.

The must apply from within their own countries and be judged on a points system assessing their language and educational background, job skills and job availability.

The measure has been widely applauded by many Canadians who believed the immigration laws has become far too loose; political experts here claim to have identified a significant anti-immigration backlash in the recent federal elections.

But the federal government has also pledged to open more offices overseas where would-be immigrants can apply.

This is because of charges by several minority groups here that it is far easier to apply from England, the United States and certain European countries than from India, South America, Asia and the Carribean, where many intended applicants come from.

Amendment 2 Extends Homestead Protection Law

By Bill Hobby

AUSTIN

The protection of a person's home is a much-cherished Texas tradition. Homestead laws date back to the days when the state was a republic.

In 1839 , Texas passed a law which prohibited the forced sale of a family's homestead for the payment of debts. This principle was reasserted in the five state constitutions which have been adopted since then.

A major shortcoming of our homestead provisions, I believe is that this protection was not afforded to the real property of single adults.

This November 6 we will have the chance to right this inequity. Amendment 2 on the ballot would extend the same homestead protection to single adults, which is presently available only to families.

Increasingly, there are single adults in our society who have invested their earnings in a home. In my opinion, it is patently unfair that they could lose their home under circumstances in which a family would retain ownership.

Amendment 2 also provides that abandonment of a family homestead will require the consent of both husband and wife. The present Constitution does not provide for this, and it has been held that the consent of both parties is not required to give up a homestead exemption.

In this situation, a husband can abandon the homestead without his wife's consent, leaving her in danger of losing the home.

Amendment 3 on this November's ballot also deals with the homestead provisions.

Families always have enjoyed an exemption from ad valorem taxes on the first $3,000 value of their homestead.

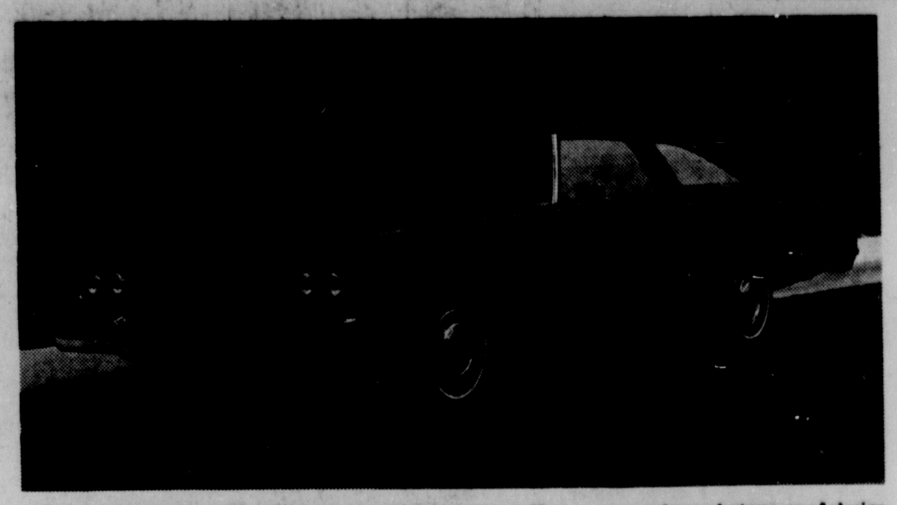
Last year, Texas voters approved an amendment to the Constitution which extended a further property tax break to persons 65 or older.

This amendment was interpreted to mean that a family relationship must exist. Consequently, many tax collectors refused to grant this exemption to home-owning widows and other qualified single persons.

Amendment 3 would clear up this confusion, providing that the extended exemption could be granted regardless of family status of the elderly person.

In addition, Amendment 3 would extend the $3,000 homestead exemption to single adults. As mentioned before, I believe single citizens are entitled to the same protections and rights as married home owners.

I hope the logic of equalizing these laws and ending discrimination against the single citizens of our state will be apparent to everyone. Adoption of Amendments 2 and 3 will do much to correct these inequities.



The top-of-the-line Chevrolet Caprice Classic coupe offers a new colonnade-type roof design with a styled center pillar extending into the roof panel. Rear quarter windows are nearly 50 per cent larger. In 1974 the Caprice Classic line offers five basic models: a coupe, convertible, sport sedan, four-door sedan and both two and three-seat wagons. Other Caprice styling features include inboard parking lights, fender side-marker lights, bright grille with vertical highlights and new standard wheel covers. Introduction date for all Chevrolet models is Thursday, September 20.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN

As prices keep spiraling upward, the hapless consumer is having such a hard time stretching the dollar as far as his or her needs demand that most of them are looking for every available budget expander.

It is a difficult, and time-consuming, pursuit, because most people are parttime buyers, whereas the retailers from whom they buy are full time sellers. And at this point in our economy, the merchants -- who also are consumers -- are complaining that they, too, are having a hard time making ends meet.

The consumers' search for bargains and the merchants' desire for new customers have resulted in some unique retailing systems, such as the old fashioned co-operative, and the "membership" purchasing plan.

In most cases, membership retailing seems to be working to the satisfaction of both member-buyers and member-merchants. Under this type of program, a group of people affiliated through employment, fraternal organization, credit union or other mutual bond, arrange to patronize certain retailers in exchange for a set discount.

The consumer club issues identification cards to its members, and publicizes the participating merchants products among its membership in exchange for the discount privilege.

The buyer can benefit through reduced costs, and the seller has the chance to gain a new market.

But the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's office has received complaints which indicate that some so-called purchaser clubs are operating solely to the benefit of the operators.

The complaints usually have centered on schemes in which salesmen are recruited to sell discount membership cards, after making a personal monetary investment in the plan, and are promised large commissions in return.

The salesman's job to call on merchants and talk them into buying lots of the cards, and getting their own customers to buy into the plan. The merchants allegedly are told they not only will increase their clientele, but they will be paid a commission on each membership they sell. And, we are told, the merchants are promised the bonus of free advertising in exchange for their participation.

The consumer, who may be asked to pay as much as $40 or $50 to belong to the "club" is promised large discounts and "huge annual savings."

When this sort of plan is not operated properly, our Consumer Protection Division receives complaints from every participant -- the salesmen, the merchants and the consumers. Merchants have charged that they did not receive their commissions, and/or did not reap any advertising benefits. Salesmen have complained of failing to receive commissions. And consumers have stated that the discounts they received were miniscule in comparison to what they had been promised.

Chevrolet Offers Seven Passenger Car Lines

Chevrolet Motor Division takes new strides forward as the industry's manufacturing and sales leader with important advances in sturdiness and roadability in its seven different passenger car lines for 1974.

On the way to a third consecutive record "three million-plus sales" year, Chevrolet will introduce its new cars and trucks in dealerships showrooms across the country on Thursday, September 20.

A total of 44 models are being offered by Chevrolet for 1974... four less than in the previous model year.

Greatest change is in the Chevelle line where a new sporty Laguna Type S-3 coupe is added while a luxurious new Malibu Classic series replaces the Laguna series at the tope-of-the line. The Malibu becomes the standard series replacing the former DeLuxe designation.

"Improvements all across the board add value to all our car lines," says F. James McDonald, Chevrolet general manager.

"Later in mid-year of the 1974 model run," McDonald added, "further excitment will be added with the introduction of the special performance Cosworth Vega. Heart of this limited production option," he said, "will be the Cosworth Vega engine with dual overhead camshafts and 16 valves -- four per cylinder."

IGNITION INTERLOCK

In addition to the various styling and mechanical advances, Chevrolet is equipping all cars in 1974 with a sequential ignition interlock in the seat belt system that calls for the driver and front seat passenger to be seated with belts buckled before the car will start. Seat sensors and buckle switches operate sequentially to help prevent defeating the system.

There are three distinct bumper systems on Chevrolet cars in compliance with the more stringent government impact regulations.

They include the hydraulic-pneumatic energy absorbying systems on the regular Chevrolet, Chevelle, Monte Carlo and Nova; the new spring-mounted aluminum bumpers with resilient impact strips on Camaro and Vega; and the body-colored urethane "soft" covers with aluminum and cast iron reinforcement and draw bolts on the Corvette.

Engine power ranges from the Vega's aluminum alloy block four-cylinder 140-cubic inch power plant and the standard 250 cubic inch six-cylinder on up to an optional 545 cubic-inch V8.

Various sizes of steel-belted radial ply tires are standard on Corvette, Monte Carlo and Laguna Type S-3 and available as extra cost options on all others.

Headlining the broad variety of other Chevrolet developments for 1974 are new front and rear styling for standard-size cars; new styling for the Chevelle and Vega lines; new front and rear appearance for the Camaro; and styling refinements for the Monte Carlo.

The five coupes in the standard Chevrolet and Chevelle series have new roof designs. There are new bumper systems using for the first time extruded aluminum bumpers for Camaro and Vega.

Important chassis and structural improvements for greater driveability and durability also have been engineered into many 1974 models

Other features for 1974 include wear sensors and indicators for idsc brake lining and front suspension ball joint; new battery flame arrestor caps; a low internal resistance battery and a more simplified air conditioning system.

Seedling Sales Up

Seedling sales at the Texas Forest Service Indian Mound Nursery near Alto took a dramatic leap upward during the 1972-73 tree planting season according to Mason C. Cloud, head, Forest Environment Department, College Station. A total of 1,652 Texas landowners, nearly double the previous year, planted over 26-1/2 million seedlings.

Not since 1960 has Texas experienced such interest in forest and windbreak planting, Cloud stated. Records indicate the seedlings were shipped to 181 of Texas' 254 counties.

Through 1973, Cloud continued, the Texas Forest Service nursery has produced more than 17 million improved pine seedlings, enough to plant about 32,000 acres.

The southern pines, loblolly, slash and shortleaf, were the leading tree species sold by the nursery. Species sold for windbreak plantings around homesteads and fields accounted for 400,000 seedlings.

Jekel Is Certified Ecologist

The official State Health Department's certificate of competency for the oldest ecology oriented profession in Texas, has been awarded to Frank Jekel of Route 1, Cameron.

Jekel works for the North Milam Water Supply. As a Water Ecologist, he has been taught effective ways for producing safe drinking water and treatments to make wastewater into clean streams for public use.

To receive the certificate he has completed both a formal and a specialized education, accumulated a prescribed amount of actual work experience, and passed the examination given by the State Health Department's Sanitary Engineers.

The growing need for clean water has made the water ecologist one of the most important workers in his community. Most of his work is not seen by the public he serves; but the effects are used daily everytime someone uses water.

I didn't know how to tell Billy about the accident. How can you say to your son that his mother is injured and there seems no hope?

I held him close, but could find no words of comfort. Suddenly I heard Billy start to pray softly. I had always left prayers and that sort of thing up to Mary. I somehow felt it couldn't really help, but I felt myself kneeling with Billy.

Softly he prayed as his mother had taught him. To my surprise I heard no begging plea but rather earnest conversation like that with a trusted and loved friend. "Thy will be done," not hopelessly, but serenely acknowledging the goodness of God's will.

Miraculously, we brought Mary home yesterday, and I plan to spend the rest of my life praising God, not only for her recovery, but also for the faith I have learned from our son.

You can bet that when Mary and Billy go to church next Sunday, I'll be right there with them—singing, praising and believing.

West Trojans To March Into Yoemen's Country

Last year the West Trojans and the Cameron Yoemen battled to a 14-14 tie and it is often said that history will repeat itself. However, Ed Cauley and the Cameron Yoemen hope that this won't be true Friday night, as the Trojans march into Yoe country.

West will be relying very heavily on the passing of quarterback David Snokhous and the receiving of ends Wayne Sullivan and Kenneth Taylor.

Meanwhile, Cameron will be shooting for their third victory, relying once again on backs George Whiteside and Willie Bell.

The Yoemen will also have to maintain a strong defense and adjust to the Trojans different offensive sets, including the almost extinct shotgun formation.

Last year at this time Cameron had two victories under their belt and West suffered the burden of two losses. However, the surprising Trojans still battled the Yoemen to a 14-14 tie and then reached the regional round for District 22-AA.

Many say that West is back with a stronger team than last years, and you can be sure the Yoemen will not underestimate their ability.

African Missionaries Adapting To Changes

By Bernard Edinger

UPPER VOLTA

Reuter -- The little African boy stood in the clearing, clad only in his shorts under the late afternoon sun, and turned smiling.

"De Gaulle? His car is just arriving," he said, pointing at a dusty and battered old Citroen Deux Chevaux as it pulled into the yard.

With the sun hitting his eyes and preventing him from seeing clearly, the visitor squinted half-incredulously as a hulking figure with a vaguely familiar silhouette emerged from behind the wheel.

The illusion was nearly perfect as the Rev. Father Francois De Gaulle, nephew of the late French leader and a Roman Catholic missionary in this small town in central Africa extended his hand in greeting.

"Welcome to Koudougou Mission" he said, smiling as he stood in his long khaki robe and jungle boots, sleeves rolled up high over tanned forearms.

Father De Gaulle, or "Le Pere Degolo" as he is known in the area, is one of 3,800 members of the White Fathers Missionary Congregation in Africa who had had to adapt to changing conditions as new independent nations emerge in the continent.

Though voluntarily isolated from the public eye, De Gaulle, 52, is not totally unknown to the outside world.

His tall silhouette was seen on television screens and in newspapers around the world when he conducted the funeral service of his illustrious uncle in the little church of Colombey-Les-Deux-Eglises in eastern France, at the general's death in November 1970.

In accordance with family tradition, De Gaulle shuns all publicity about himself and few of the isolated villagers he visits know he is related to the man who granted their country its independence and whose features adorn many of its postage stamps.

DeGaulle retains all the distinction of the old world host and the visitor enquiring about the life of missionaries in the developing Africa of the 1970s is pressed into accepting an invitation for an evening meal.

Supper is served on a thick wooden table set in the mission yard, which is lit by crude oil lamps while the humid air is filled with the exotic nocturnal noises of the African plains.

Present are the other mission members, 45-year-old Father Frairey, a muscular and bearded French priest, and a young dark-eyed and curly headed Apanist missionary who has just returned from a three-day tour of remote bush villages.

And there are Father De Gaulle's own nephew, Jacques, a medical student from Tours in western France, and one of his classmates, both of whom are spending their summer holidays helping in Koudougou hospital.

As a simple meal is served, the priests explain their newrole in African society.

"The days have changed when we were in charge of most of the educational and medical facilities. Today, Upper Volta, our host country, is training many young people to teach -- some of them right next door at the St. Mukassa School which is staffed by African priests," Frairey explains.

"The mission of the White Fathers Congregation, which is just one of many orders active in Africa, has boiled down to doing what missionary work was in the beginning: bringing people to Christianity and as the saying goes, spreading the good word," he says.

De Gaulle adds: "In this country we are extremely fortunate. The people of Volta are not only extremely charming their society is one of the most tolerant on the continent.

"Here, four to five million Animists, or disciples of traditional local faiths, the more than one million Moslems and our 400,000 Christians live side by side in friendship," he explains.

The traditional tolerence of the Volta people is amply demonstrated on the little train which chugs its way here from the capital of Ouagadougou.

Moslems sometimes kneel in the aisles for their prayers while their Animist or Christian fellow passengers take no particular notice.

Tourist Traffic Increases Between Finland, Russia

By Colin Narbrough

HELSINKI

Reuter -- Some 100,000 Finns are expected to visit the nearest big city to their remote country this year -- crossing the border to Leningrad in the Soviet Union.

Tourist authorities here expect a big jump in the number of Finns who make brief trips to the historic city, only a couple of hours drive from Finland's eastern border.

Last year about 70,000 made the trip to Leningrad -- the biggest national contingent from a non-communist country.

There are direct rail, road, air and sea links with Leningrad, which under its old name of St. Petersburg was the capital of the Russian empire until the Bolshevik revolution of 1917.

From 1809 to the revolution, Finland was an autonomous grand duchy within the empire, and communications were long developed with the czarist capital.

But Finland's traditional ties with the west were always maintained, and strengthened all the more after ties with Leningrad were broken with the revolution.

Though only 20 miles from Finland's pre-World War II frontier, Leningrad has unreachable for most Finns for some 30 years.

With the consistent improvement of Finnish-Soviet relations after World War II, tourism -- especially weekend and other short trips to Leningrad -- has developed significantly.

But as one Helsinki travel agent observed, "Finns nevertheless buy five times more package holidays to faraway Spain than to nearby Leningrad."

Though Soviet authorities have eased the red tape for Finnish tourists to a considerable extent, the hotel bottleneck and bureaucracy still call for much more effort from the tourist than the smooth charter deals offered for trips to holiday resorts in the west.

Though the Soviet Union welcomes the tourists hard currency, rowdy behaviour by some hard-drinking Finns has brought harsh reaction from Soviet law enforcers.

The Finnish vice-counsul in Leningrad, Arvo Rytkonen recently warned that the Soviet authorities had toughened punishments for foreign visitors causing a breach of the peace or acting contrary to civil order.

In fact this has already meant between 10 and 15 days jail for Finnish tourists caught drunk or brawling -- a frequent consequence of easy-flowing vodka. Some offenders have even had their heads shaved -- a practice that appears unnecessarily nasty to many Finns.

But tourists are not only crossing the Finnish border from West to East. Increasing numbers of busa-borne Soviet tourists are seen here. The Soviet travel agency Intourist is currently involved in the construction of a major hotel in the centre of Helsinki.

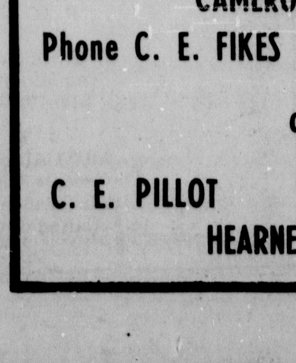
Besides the tourist traffic between the second Soviet city and its nearest western neighbor, there is also a fast-growing border trade -- commerce that does not go via Moscow.

Total trade between the Leningrad Trading Corporation and Finland was 30 million roubles (about 40 million dollars) -- balanced out evenly.

The figure is expected to increase to about 50 million dollars this year and the Finns would like to expand what they regard as geographically natural trade.

The Finnish-Soviet border could hardly be described as "iron curtain" and is probably the most liberalised of Soviet frontiers with the non-communist world.

But despite both Finnish and Soviet government efforts to increase contacts, the flow of goods and people between Finland and the west is still much more simple and prone to rapid growth.



Austrian Party Seeking Liberals

By Sidney Weiland

VIENNA

Reuter -- Austria's smallest political party has headed off a potentially explosive national issue by disavowing a party official who said publicly that he dislikes Jews.

The statement came at an embarrassing time for the Freedom Party, whose leaders are being quietly courted as future coalition partners by Austria's Jewish chancellor, Dr. Bruno Kreisky.

The Freedom Party, which could hold a balance of power in the next elections, has strong right-wing traditions and many ex-Nazi members, but is striving hard now for a more liberal outlook.

The party's image-building was briefly endangered when the deputy leader of its Vienna branch, Hans Klement, said he would oppose a coalition between the Freedom Party and Kreisky's ruling socialists on racial grounds.

"My upbringing and my basic attitudes would not permit it," Klement was quoted as saying in a magazine interview. "I don't think I can leap over my own past."

Klement, 63, a non-commissioned officer in the World War II German army, denied he was an anti-semite but said the ideological "model which I have built for myself is essentially different from what exists today."

He admitted feeling a "certain subconscious antipathy" toward the head of the government because Kreisky is Jewish. Kreisky has been chancellor since 1970.

Also in the interview, Klement was quoted as pleading for a "certain tolerance" in public attitudes toward Nazi concentrations camps, because, he said, "such concentration camps also exist on the other side."

For many Austrians, the interview was additionally disquieting because it evoked historically tarnished concepts of a "Germanic Austria. " The idea of an Austrian nation was absurd, Klement said.

While such views still exist in Austria, they are rarely mentioned in print. Austrians generally prefer to forget the welcome given by many ordinary citizens when Hitler enforced the country's union with Germany in 1938.

Freedom Pary leaders declared that Klement spoke for himself alone, but stopped short of public censure, apparently for fear of alienating right-wing veterans in the party. Officials dismissed Klement as a relic of what they described as the party's old guard.

Reports Predict Tokyo's Fate

By Geoffrey Murray

TOKYO

Reuter -- Fifty years after Tokyo's last major distructive earthquake, two official reports have predicted a grim fate for the city if it should happen again.

In fact, many scientists predict Tokyo will suffer a severe earthquake in the next 10 to 15 years, based on research into the cyclical nature of such occurrences and earth movements around the city.

The upheaval that devastated the Japanese capital on Sept. 1, 1923, resulted in an estimated 140,000 deaths.

Most of these have been blamed on the numerous fires that swept through the rubble. The quake occurred at lunchtime when many cooking stoves were in operation.

In the event of a new major earthquake occurring at suppertime, the Tokyo fire board has estimated 2,500 fires will break out simultaneously -- and most will be uncontrollable, engulfing the city in a sea of fire.

The board released its findings after a three-month citywide survey. The most important change from a similar survey five years ago was the upward revision of probable fires from 730 to 2,500.

The board's estimate was based on the assumption that two-thirds of Tokyo's 15 million pieces of fire-making equipment would be in operation during the peak evening cooking period.

It also reported that only about 20 percent of Tokyo's buildings are fire-proof.

Many of Tokyo's wards are densely populated, with predominantly wooden homes crammed together in extremely narrow streets.

Not only would fires spread quickly in such circumstances, but it would be almost impossible for fire fighting teams to get reasonable access to the blazes.

Urban renewal projects are only very slowly improving the most congested areas.

The Tokyo government recently announced an expensive and far-reaching plan to try and make the city earthquake and fire proof over the next five years.

The emphasis is on prevention of building destruction and fires.

Subsidies will be given to aid residents of the traditional Japanese wooden houses to rebuild with stronger materials if they desire. A total of 190,000 fire extinguishers will be sited along city streets.

A second official report -- this time from the construction ministry -- also paints a grim picture of what could happen if a major earthquake strikes the sprawling industrial complexes intermingled with residential areas all round Tokyo.

The ministry reported that in the event of a disaster in the Keihin industrial belt -- Yokohama and Kawasaki, on Tokyo's southern flank -- clouds of poisonous gas are likely to cover the whole area and fires spread over land and sea killing many people.

Poage Resolution Relates To MIAs

WASHINGTON

Central Texas Congressman W. R. (Bob) Poage has called for a cessation of all trade, travel or talks with the North Vietnam and Viet Cong provisional revoluntionary governments until they comply with Peace Treaty terms relating to American MIAs -- those servicemen missing in action.

A Concurrent Resolution Congressman Poage introduced in the House points out in its preamble that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have failed to live up to promises to help in the location and care of the graves of the dead and in the exhumation and repatriation of the remains of missing GIs, or in the gathering of information on any who may be still alive and languishing in jungle prisons.

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Falls account for almost one-third of all accidental deaths in the home.

Last year, some 8,000 people died from accidental falls in the home. Such accidents are not restricted to falls from one level to another but may be the result of a fall on a level surface.

Statistics indicate that more than half of these fatalities involved people over the age of 65. The elderly's impaired hearing,vision, and sense of touch, coupled with a possible lessened sense of balance and a certain degree of handicapped mobility, make them highly susceptible to accidental falls.

Officials at the Texas State Department of Health emphasize that many home accidental falls, especially among the elderly, can be avoided if forethought to safety is applied when building remodeling, or rearranging your home.

For instance, many accidents could be averted if stairs were eliminated in home construction. While one-story single family homes successfully achieve the goal, increasing land costs unfortunately may necessitate the construction of multi-level housing.

So, it seems, stairs will be with us always. But they can and should be built with safety in mind. Dividing a one-story rise into two flights of stairs witn an intervening landing should reduce the amoung of injury by limiting the fall to less than one story. Also, stair treads and risers should be uniform in size. Handrails should be continuous, with double handrails when possible. This added safety precaution would provide a rail for both ascending and descending the stairs. The handrail should be small enough to be grasped easily.

Single steps are a very great hazard. Think of how many times you've overlooked single steps in an entrance sidewalk or between rooms, losing your balance as you unsuspectedly stepped down. If steps cannot be grouped to achieve the desired change in level, a ramp should be more useful. For elderly people a railing alongside changes in level is essential.

Defensive Driving Course Set

COLLEGE STATION

"Defensive Driving." That's the password for auto safety to be spread during the next12 months across Texas by six employes of Texas A&M University's Engineering Extension Service.

The Instructors will offer the Defensive Driving Course, begun several years ago by the National Safety Council, to employes of the rural electric cooperatives in all areas of the state.

Just initiated in Texas by the Job Training and Safety Advisory Committee of Texas Electric Cooperatives, Inc., the courses are co-sponsored by the Texas Safety Association and the Engineering Extension Service.

The program nation-wide has been proved a deterrent to automobile accidents, and as a result the estimated 2,000 c0-op employes and families expected to take the course will each receive a 10 per cent reduction on auto insurance premiums.

"Due to circumstances beyond our control..."

Texas Power & Light Company has a long, solid history of providing its customers with reliable electric power at the lowest price consistent with good service. The Company wants electricity to always be one of the biggest bargains in your budget.

However, there are circumstances beyond our control which indicate future electric rate increases are inevitable.

Higher Cost of Fuels The diminishing supply of natural gas and fuel oil has pushed the prices of these generating plant fuels to new highs and is significantly increasing the cost of producing electricity. TP&L's fuel bill was over $40 million last year, 30% higher than in 1971, and it's expected to be even higher in 1973.

Higher Cost of Construction Because of today's energy crisis, new generating plants must be built to operate with other fuels, such as lignite and nuclear materials. These plants are much more costly to build than gas-fueled ones, but to assure you an ample supply of electric power in the future, construction of new facilities is essential -- and must be done even though TP&L faces additional rising costs for labor, materials and land.

Higher Cost of Financing The rising cost of money needed to finance new plants and other facilities has been increasing at a staggering rate.

All of these circumstances are beyond our control -- and they make producing your electricity much costlier than ever before. However, TP&L will continue to use every practical method and every possible efficiency to keep the price of electricity low and still provide you with dependable electric service in the years ahead.

PAPERBACK SHOPPING AID...

As food and food shopping continue to be important to each of us, it is necessary to pause to remember some of the old tricks and to learn some new ones to aid us with the family shopping. One of the handiest little refresher courses in good food shopping I've seen in a long time is a paperback book, "How To Shop For Food." This book was written by Jean Rainey in cooperation with the Consumer Advisory Committee of the National Association of Food Chains.

It is packed full of practical tips for the family food buyer. It covers such topics as best meat buys; milk, ice cream and cheese; seasonal fruit and vegetable guide; bakery convenience; meatless proteins; beverages; good nutrition; the value of convenience foods; additives, what they are and what they do; and many others.

I have found it to be a good reminder for the experienced shopper and an excellent guide for the new shopper. I would certainly recommend it. It may be available in the paperback section of your local supermarket for 95¢; but, if not, send me your request and I will see that you get one.
